NINETEENTH STREET MOST PROGRESSIVE PART OF CITY NOW

New Ice Plant, Lumber Plant and Modern Garage Mark Start For 1923—Other Improvements Under Way

OLD BUILDINGS AND OLD TRADITIONS GIVE WAY TO NEW

It is with pardonable pride that the citizens of Middlesboro are viewing the recent development of North Nineteenth street. The thoroughfare that was once lined with saloons, that was often the scene of crime and that has been built up with frame houses that have long since become unsightly and dilapidated is now in the path of progress, and useful industry.

The erection of the $150,000 ice plant the new City Lumber and Supply company and the proposed modern garage and service station of W. A. Gastineau and company are merely the inauguration of a building boom that seems to be destined to sweep the entire section.

Business men and investors are beginning to realize the wonderful possibilities of this old, yet long neglected section of the city and are investing their capital there for its improvement. Advance in the price of property in the vicinity has greatly increased as a result of this recent boom.

"The property that I bought for the garage and service station a few weeks ago is worth $6,000 more than I paid," said Mr. Gastineau, in commenting upon the improvements being made in the section.

Not only the frame buildings are falling with the march of prosperity, but the old brick houses as well. The substation of the Kentucky Utilities company which is located on the site of the new ice plant was judged by the management not to be a proper building for the new establishment and is now being razed.

Business men throughout the section are predicting a new era of prosperity for this part of town. It is without a sigh that they witness the gradual disappearance of unsightly barns and other buildings which will be replaced by modern business houses that would be a credit to any city.

CORBIN MANAGER SAYS "RED WIDOW" BEST SHOW EVER

The above telegram was received by manager Brown from Corbin this morning. In view of the fact that the Hippodrome Theatre played "Eve", the show that pleased so well in Middlesboro a short time ago, leads Manager Brown to believe that "The Red Widow" is very much out of the ordinary.

PUBLIC SERVICE K. U. COMPANY HAS BROAD SCOPE

Can Furnish Any Electrical Appliance Made—New Ice Plant Under Way to Augment Electricity and Water Service

W. C. STAIR, GENERAL MANAGER FOR K. U. HERE

Too much can scarcely be said about the public service rendered by the merchandise department of the Kentucky Utilities company of Middlesboro. In charge of D. C. Wester, an expert of many years experience in this particular line, the department has gradually broadened its scope of service until now it is able to furnish any thing electrical that is ever needed or that can be procured in any city. W. C. Stair, general manager of the company, has, more than anyone else, assured the company's success in this section.

The past year has been one of the most successful that the company has ever experienced. Recently they have furnished light and power to the Log Mountain mines, several dwellings with light at Stony Fork and made numerous other extensions into the nearby mining towns.

The Utilities company guarantees all merchandise sold by it and "services" it free of charge. There have been many cases, however, where such goods have been bought from other cities and when the local electric company is called upon to do repair work it is of course charged for at the regular rates.

Having for many years furnished the city with electric current for lighting and power and with clear, pure water from Fern Lake, the company is now preparing to broaden its sphere of usefulness by also supplying the city with ice. This will be manufactured from the virgin waters of Fern Lake by the new $150,000 ice plant, the erection of which has already begun on North Nineteenth street.

With water, electricity and ice, dozens of towns throughout the state are furnished by this company which was aptly named when it was called "Utilities." It is gradually reaching out its service being more and more in demand all the time.

HUNG JURY IN BIGE BINGHAM TRIAL

Seven for Acquittal, Five for Conviction—Court to Middlesboro Next Week

PINEVILLE, Mar. 10.—A hung jury seven voting for acquittal and five for conviction, is the result of the trial of Bige Bingham charged with the murder of John Stamper, July 28, 1921, at the corner of the Star Store in Pineville. The trial has lasted practically the whole week, but the completion of testimony was accomplished Thursday afternoon. The arguments were made by Judge J. G. Rollins of Pineville and H. H. Owens of Barbourville, for the defense and James Golden and J. J. Tuggle of Barbourville for the commonwealth. It was late Thursday afternoon before the case got to the jury and at 2:30 Friday afternoon they reported that they could not agree.

Bingham's defense was based on an alibi, and the defense attempted to prove by Bingham and other witnesses that he was in a Ford sedan at the Narrows, when the fight occurred which ended young Stamper's life, and in which Jack Gilbert was killed, and Buster Roberts, then chief of Police was wounded. The state sought to prove that Bingham shot Stamper five times after he had already been wounded, and had fallen to the ground.

KU KLUX PARADE DOESNT COME OFF

Pineville People Disappointed Last Night When Klan Fail to Show Selves

PINEVILLE, Mar. 10.—Posters distributed over Pineville Friday morning announcing the initial demonstration of the Imperial Order of the Ku Klux Klan for last night attracted wide attention, and many groups of people gathered upon the streets to watch the parade scheduled for 9:30 o'clock, only to be disappointed. Everyone was looking forward to the appearance of the organization with interest, if not excitement, and there were more people on the downtown streets last night than for a long, long time previously.

It was breathed about that the authorities of law and order were going to prohibit the parade, and it was also suggested that the whole thing was only a farce. Anyway they didn't come.

INSURANCE AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT IS URGED BY HOOVER

World Develop Through "Mutual, Non-Governmental Institutions"—Protects Workers and Employers

PLAN ALREADY PROVEN IN SEVERAL COUNTRIES

By Harry Hunt

WASHINGTON, March 9—Insurance to protect workers against unemployment was urged by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce.

The type of insurance advocated by Hoover would aim—

To provide for wives and families of workers when the workers are "laid off."

TO stem the continual migration of seekers from place to place.

To benefit employers by enabling them to keep the same employes from year to year without losing efficiency by training new staffs after every industrial depression.

"Unemployment insurance, in my judgment should be developed in the hands of mutual non-governmental institutions, Hoover said.

"Most organized labor, opposes governmental unemployment insurance. But I believe that as a voluntary insurance in mutual form, it could and would meet with approval just as all other rightly founded insurance has proved its worth."

"In what way would such insurance be provided?" I inquired. "Who would pay the premiums? What would be the approximate cost in proportion to wages?"

The workers are not the only ones who suffer during depressions of employment," Hoover answered. "There is a great loss to industry due to the scattering of workers The average man out of a job does not idly wait for his job to open for him again. He seeks work. If he cannot find it in the city where he is, he looks elsewhere.

Aids Employers, Too

"As a result organizations are disrupted. There is lost time and added expense in gathering new workers and fitting them into their new jobs.

"This would be saved to the employer who had taken out employment insurance for his workers. During the period of slack employment he would be enabled to hold his force together.

"The insurance payments would provide for the men who had just been laid off and their families, just as sickness or accident insurance would carry them through a period of idleness enforced through illness of accident."

"But wouldn't that be—at the start at least—expensive insurance? would n't the rates be experimental at first, probably high and tend to discourage employers from attempting it?"

Plan Already Tried

"Some actual experiences already exists in various countries. And even upon our own statistics of unemployment it coud be given a sound actuarial basis if applied to large groups. It would be a mutual undertaking. I do not believe the cost would exceed 1 or 2 per cent of the payroll.

"There are a great many employers who would today join in the cost of such insurance if it were undertaken. With great industrial groups united in such joint action, risks would decrease and a great measure or security be established for employes.

"There is nothing that leads to such despair and decay of self respect as being out of a job when a man wants work and when the support of his family is in jeopardy.

"Here remains a great field where insurance can be newly developed."

D. F. DONOVAN HAS WATCHED DEVELOPMENT OF MIDDLESBORO

D. F. Donovan, owner of a first-class meat market on Nineteenth street, remembers when Cumberland avenue was merely an elongated mud hole and has seen the development of the street into the important business section of town that it now is. The building in which he has the meat market one of the first ones built.

His father, Dennis Donovan, who had come across the "big pond" from Ireland to seek his fortune in the New World, began the first dairy business in Middlesboro. He sold the first pint of milk that was ever used here. His dairy was located near the present golf links. The old barn which he used burned down a few years ago. R. H. Fox was a partner in the enterprise.

D. F. Donovan bought the meat market which he now operates from Sam Henziker in 1915. By keeping the kinds of meat which his customers demand and by his fair dealings with them he has built up a flourishing business.

MIDDLESBORO CHICKENS MUST STAY IN, POLICE CHIEF SAYS

"Notice is hereby given to owners of chickens in the city of Middlesboro to put up their chickens and keep them up. This is all the notice they will receive. Those violating this ordinance are subject to a fine of five dollars for the first offense and a fine of five to ten dollars for the second offense. Signed H. E. Ball, Chief of Police."

Members of the police department are worried almost incessantly by victims of neighbor's chickens which are prone to stray from home and invade foreign premises. This condition has become worse with the coming of warm weather. Minions of the law will henceforth be on the lookout for violators of the chicken ordinance.

Hens and roosters, with their enternal propensity for scratching, are natural foes of gardens and flower beds. It is for this reason that so many complaints have recently been made against the domestic fowl.

WEDDING GIFTS

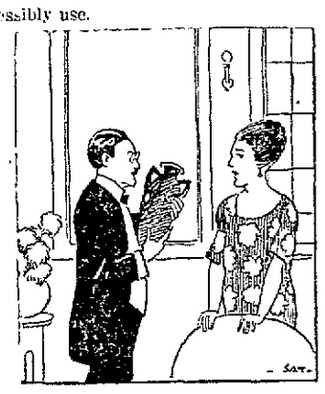
1: Wedding gifts should be sent early; three weeks before the wedding is not too soon.

2: All wedding presents are sent to the bride and are her personal legal property, but in her notes of thanks she expresses the gratitude of the groom with her own.

3:The wedding invitation does not call for a present; only intimate friends send gifts to a bride being married the second time.

4: All wedding presents should be set out at the wedding reception in a manner to display each to its best advantage.

5: It's perfectly proper for a bride to exchange wedding presents when she has a greater number of any sort —say 20 salt cellars—than she can possibly use.



It's bad manners for the groom to make his wedding gift to the bride anything but jewelry or some article for her personal adornment.

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

A THOUGHT

No man, when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but setteth it on a candlestick, that they which enter in may see the light.—Lu. 8:16.

Light is the symbol of truth.—Lowell.

SEEDS YOU SOW

With spring approaching swiftly, most of us feel the stirring of the seed-planting instinct inherited from days when our ancestors lived naturally, close to the soil. It is an instinct that dies hard, even when smothered by the congestion of cities. You realize this as you see the city man planning a home garden almost pathetic in size, and his wife eager to plant flowers.

In all philosophy, there is nothing more fundamental and far-embracing than the Bibical parable about the sower who went forth to sow. Some seed fell on fertile ground and sprouted. Some fell on barren ground and brought no results.

The old parable applies to the life of each of us, in this way: We work on the law of averages. Effort is like seed. Not all of it brings results But some does. Naturally, given fertile soil, the more seed we plant (the more effort we put forth)' the greater will be our crop. The crop is fortune, fame, health or happiness, whether they come singly or in combinations

Handed down from misty past is the wisdom, that we reap as we sow. Not always, possibly, but true on the law of averages. Many of us, wretched and unhappy now, are merly reaping the harvest of wrong seed sown in the past.

The approach of spring should bring new courage and determination, for spring fairly shouts to us to forget the old crop and sow seed for a new harvest. As we are sowing now, we'll reap later—money, fame, happiness health. It's the law of cause and effect—compensation, Emerson called it.

WHAT IS YOUR FAMILY BIBLE USED FOR?

It is a beautiful Bible. It's binding is lustious, soft leather, and every story is illustrated with the loveliest pictures, and maps just where they are needed to trace the necessary background. And every now and then there are smooth white pages with dainty colored designs of roses and violets, of babies and brides. That is where the weddings are supposed to be recorded, the christening certificate placed for safe keeping and the deaths written in—but aren't.

It is a "family Bible," but nobody seems to care. It just lies there on a shelf year after year growing rustier and rustier. Somebody will dust it off at housecleaning time; then perhaps, it will take on fresh hope. How disappointed and discouraged it will be if again no one glances inside and reads a bit!

Ah, that's not like the family Bible at our home folks' house. True enough, it isn't carried in the lap and perused often enough to get its pages dog-eared, but someone of us never fail to consult it when we get there.

You must remember that there were eleven children in our family, nine of whom have raised families. And the grandchildren crop has grown so large that the 'birth" pages in the sacred old book have almost been used up.

Of course, mother keeps all the dates in her head. She can tell you in the flash of an eye the date of the birth of any one of her fifteen-odd grandchildren, not to mention the children, but often the daughters or the daughters-in-law like to make a list of these names and days

Oh, yes the family Bible is a handy volume around our house. The clasp which used to hold it together in front has long since been broken at the hinge where the kids used to play with it when grandma wasn't around

Blessed old Family Bible! Time was when great grandfather was alive that it used to be read at family prayers, but it's nothing more than a record book and a parlor table ornament now.

—Marion Falcon.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem
PELEHATCHIE
By Berton Braley

(Pronounce it "Pellyhatchie) ..

We got bogged outside of Forest in some Mississippi wallows
Where there wasn't any bottom to the clay that lined the hollows,
But with seven darkies pushing, and with seven others plugging,
We were set upon the roadway and our car continued chugging Toward the tiny town of Morton, on a so-called highway which is Made of clay and muck and gumbo heaped between two ten-foot ditches;
By a miracle we made it, till all muddy cold and drippy,
We arrived at Pelehatche, Mississippi.

We had planned on making Vicksburg,
or at least on reaching Jackson,
But the sturdy, fighting spirit of the hardy Anglo-Saxon Wasn't strong enough within us; we were weary, bone and sinew,
And our common sense decided it was silly to continue
Thus we rested from our labors as the shades of night were falling
And the dinner bell was ringing with a melody enthralling;
We were famished from our travel
over roadways wet and slippy,
So we stopped at Pelehatche, Mississippi.

'Twas a funny country hostel, but the food—the food was yummy,
It was pleasant to the palate and it satisfied the tummy.
There was biscuits light as feathers,
and my blood will ever quicken
As I think about the savor of that crisp and tender chicken, Golden eggs well fried in butter and a lot of other dishes;
Yes, the food at Pelehatche meets the tourist's fondest wishes;
So the traveler, when weary from the rigors of his trip, he Ought to stop at Pelehatche, Mississippi.

There is nothing much to do there,
there is nothing much to see there,
But the rooms are clean and comfy and it's pleasant just to be there.
And to sit around the wood-stove with the local dignitaries
And to listen to the gossip which the tongue of rumor carries.
From Meridian to Vicksburg is a journey far from pleasant,
With the roads in the condition that they sufer from at present;
But when navigating through them makes you pretty nearly dippy,
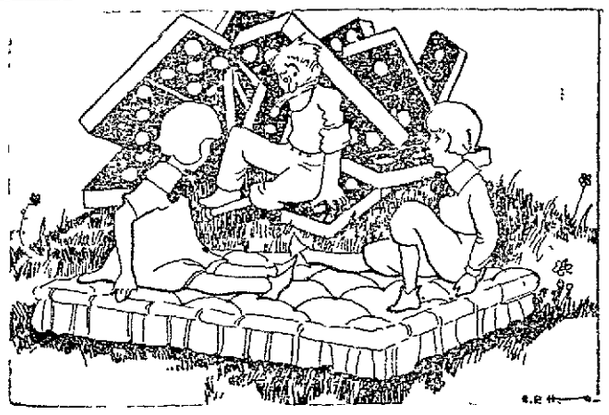
Take a rest at Pelehatche, Mississippi.

Be careful while spring cleaning It takes a finger nail nearly five months to grow out again.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



This is what the paper said—the paper that was out of the last egg the Cut-Out Woman had given the Twins

It said, "When you go up the ladder, knock once on the chimney, twice on a shutter, and three times on the door of the domino house"

"That must mean Jack Straw's house," cried Nancy.

"It certainly does!" said the rooster with the spectacles. "And I for one am going to stay aboard to see what happens."

'Well, we'll have to be starting right away," said Nick "Goodby."

"Goodby," said the rooster.

Off trotted Nancy and Nick to the place wher Jack Straw's house spun 'round and 'round on top of a steeple.

There stood the magic ladder and there lay the magic mattress in case they should fall off the magical ladder.

Up, up, up climbed Nancy

Up, up, up clambered Nick.

And when they reached Jack Straw's house all the winds stopped blowing, and the house stopped spinning around.

They knocked once on the chimney, and thrice on the shutter—and then suddenly a voice called out "You can't knock three times on my door for you don't know which domino the door is."

"Oh yes we do!" said Nick "King Even-Steven told us It's the domino with the double five on it" And with that he knocked one two, three, times on Jack Straw's front door.

Suddenly bing, bang, crash!

The house tumbled down about their ears, and down tumbled the Twins But they landed on the soft mattress that came out of the egg and that the Cut Out Lady had given them

Jack Straw tumbled, too, peg-leg and all

"Wh-what's happened?" he gasped.

"Your house fell down and now you have no place to live,' said Nancy. "You had better give up your magic ring so we can turn Mix-Up Land into Apple-Pie Land again."

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

The sun was just rising over the tops of the trees when Kate heard a car turn into the driveway.

Justin and Dorothy had gone to the fields for the morning, the latter to wtch while Justin pulled the runners out of the strawberry bed and loosened the earth around the plants preparatory to the winter season.

Kate was alone.

"You told me to come late in the afternoon," Kate recognized James Latham's voice as she neared the door, "but the day has been dragging too slowly. I had to come!"

Kate opened the door.

"I'm glad you did," she said.

"And what does this mean, Lady Fair?" his voice was vibrant, "that you do love me?"

It hurt Kate to watch the eager young face, tanned and toned with color.

"Lady Fair?" breathlessly, pleadingly.

"I can't—Jimmy. I was —all wrong —all wrong."

"I might have known," without any bitterness.

"You don't mean that, Jimmy You'll be glad some day that I did this —some day when you find the woman who can give you her first love, which is the only real love," gently.

"Then it's still Dan?"

"Yes."

The silence which followed seemed alive. Kate felt a strange happiness. She was glad of her answer to Latham, for she had known that in marrying him she would have made him as unhappy as she would have been. Her affection had all been given once, and to this attempt to revive it Kate credited many unhappy marriages.

"Then," Latham was speaking slowly, "I might as well do the decent thing. I lied when I said I saw Dan Ward register at a hotel with a woman.

"It was a lie," he added.

"And I lied," Kate said, "when I said I was the woman.

"You have meant something to me though," Kate went on, "and you will always have my appreciation for that."

She offered her hand.

"You knew Alice was buried today?" said Latham, as he turned to go.

SATURDAY

The Reward of Love

"If any man would be first, he shall be.....servant of all." Mark 9:35.

Read Mark 9:30-37.

"Christ in history. There is a fact —face it."

MEDITATION: History proves the truth of this paradox. Jesus' way of living has been clearly justified throughout the centuries. The one who serves others, gains all that is most worthwhile and takes first place in the kingdom where character counts. The one who serves self makes only temporary gains and loses all that has permanent value.

HYMN:

Take my love; my Lord I pour
At thy feet its treasures-store:
Take myself and I will be
Ever, only, all for thee!

PRAYER: O Lord, grant all who contend for the faith never to injure it by clamor and impatience; but, speaking thy precious truth in love, so to present it that it may be loved. Amen.

Pinchot's Son Has Private School And Governor Pays Bills For His Playmates

HARRISBURG, Pa., Mar. 10.—Two schools of democracy exist here.

One is in the capitol, where Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's new governor works at a desk in an unguarded reception room with this sign beside the open door: "Governor's Office Walk In. Hours, 10 to 12 daily."

The other is a real school, where seven-year old Gifford Pinchot, Jr., and young Steve Stahlnecker, son of the governor's secretary, are being educated in democracy and other subjects along with children selected from all walks of life in Harrisburg.

The school was Mrs. Pinchot's idea. She leased a 12-room house and turned it into a private school. There is no tuition; she pays all the expenses, including salaries of Miss Elizabeth Lavelle, Giffy's governess, who runs the school, and Harrison Trowbridge, Columbia graduate, who joined the Pinchot entourage last summer as a tutor.

Ten children were selected as school mates of Giffy from a list of 37 picked from public school lists. All are between the ages of six and nine; there are five boys and five girls, including children of two machinists, a lawyer, a detective, a plumber, a grocer, a shoemaker, a merchant, a druggist, and a state employe.

"Children were selected by mental and other tests," said Miss Lavelle, "and on consideration of each child's individual characteristics and energy."

NEW LUMBER AND SUPPLY COMPANY OPENS APRIL 2

S. M. Reams, President, J. W. Allison, General Manager New Firm On Nineteenth Street—Plan Extensive Enterprise

PREDICT BIGGEST BUILDING YEAR MIDDLESBORO EVER HAD

To those desiring to join in the great building boom which is beginning even now to spread over Middlesboro, news of the opening of the City Lumber and Supply company on April 2 will be hailed with delight. In view of the present and lamented shortage of houses the new firm which is being located at 427 North Nineteenth st. comes as a great publi c benefactor.

A complete line of builders supplies including everything from the stone or brick foundations to the roof will be sold wholesale and rerail by the new firm. Having a capitalization of $40,000 the new firm will be controlled and operated entirely by Middlesboro men, citizens who have the interest of the town and public at heart The officials of the company are: S. M. Reams, president; J. W. Allison, vice-president and general manager; W. H. Reams, secretary and treasurer and J. D. Templin.

At present the old building that was formerly used as a stove foundry is being remodeled for use as a warehouse The office will be located on the first floor of that part of the building fronting on Nineteenth street. The remainder of the first floor and the entire second floor will be used for the storage of supplies which will be purchased as soon as the building is ready.

The old foundary biulding is merely temporary quarters for the new firm, however. Plans have been made for the erection of from four to six new buildings as well as a number of sheds for the lumber, etc. Anxious to begin business at once, the firm did not have time to erect the new buildings before the beginning of the spring building boom.

The City Lumber and Supply company has tow and one-half acres of land around and including the old foundry lot. A side track from the railroad will be run to the premises and across the lot as soon as certain formalities with the city and with the Virginia Iron and Coal company have been completed.

"I think this will be the greatest building year that Middlesboro has ever had," stated Mr. Allison, "While building materials are a little high, I don't think this will check the building boom. The need for the houses exists and the people will build them. The slight advance in the price of materials is merely indicative of the general prosperity now beginning to open throughout the country.

NEW AUTO AGENCY ADDS TWO MAKES

Ball and Gastineau Now Selling Moon, Gray, Chalmers and Maxwell Cars

Two other makes of cars, the Chalmers and the Maxwell, have been added to the line of W. A. Gastineau and company, Middlesboro's newest motor sales firm It has had the agency for the Moon and Gray cars for several weeks.

"The new Maxwell is entirely different from the old Maxwell," said Mr. Gastineau, "it and the Chalmers are now made by the same company and both are first class cars."

Work of remodeling the building recently purchased by the new automobile firm on Nineteenth street is taking place now, and it hopes to open for business by the middle of April. A complete service station will be equipped in the old building.

The firm has plans for erecting a first-class modern garage and drive in service station which will be second to none in this section of the state. This will be built on the site of the old building but definite plans for its construction have not been worked yet.

The firm, which is a partnership between Wallace Gastineau and Floyd Ball, has already done much toward introducing the Moon and Gray cars in Middlesboro. They hope to do the same for the Maxwell and Chalmers cars and have already made some progress in interesting prospective buyers in them.

SCIENCE PREDICTS RACIAL NERVOUS BREAKDOWN PERIL

University of Chicago Professor Says We Are Becoming World of Crazy Nerves—May Affect Whole Race

TOO MUCH USELESS HURRYING SEEN AS CAUSE

By Roy Gibbons

CHICAGO, March 10—'Civilization today faces a peril far more insidious than any wastage of the body by disease—we are becoming a world of crazy nerves"

Professor Frederick Starr, head of the department of anthropology of the University of Chicago and the greatest living anthropologist, made this statement

This disease too new to have a name is far more insidious than any of the ancient plagues that once destroyed whole nations

And we are all suffering from it, according to Professor Starr

Professor Starr commenting upon a subject raised at the recent Comrade (Mass) session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science—the theory that the old Greeks Aztecs and others lost their empires not because of human invasion or conquest but because of disease, introduced in some cases by the victims they had conquered, said:

Plagues and pestilences of the old type no longer menace civilization Science has made it impossible for them today to destroy whole nations

'But we face an even greater peril today"

Then the great anthropologist gave me this description of the new malady he believes has afflicted the whole race

Its Causes

'Everyone is trying to do something different We are in a turmoil jumping running careening, not knowing where to go

'We do everything fast We telephone needlessly thus putting up a bar to effective friendships and frustrating the ordinary civilities of human relationships

'We are all much too uselessly busy

'People run about in endless circles There is lack of stability

Our minds have reached a stage bordering on almost complete neurosis

'We are in the midst of a horrible unrest, which, in the guise of religious zeal, commercial greed or lust for power and conquest is tearing whole peoples away from the customs and traditions of their country

"Minds are running riot New schemes of government are being tested

Its Effects

"We are nearing a racial nervous breakdown

"Effects of this neurotic psychological disturbance are seen in the symptoms of present day disease Ailments which 50 years ago were simple of diagnosis now bear no symptoms of their real character

'The diabetic once wasted away To days he dies in a state of corpulence

"And so it goes down the calendar of all ailments The age is changing everything This is the result of disturbed minds

"At the rate we are going it is only a matter of time before our present mode of civilization causes the race to degenerate in such a manner that we shall be without hair fingernails or teeth These are going now

"And if these effects of nervous breakdown are visible in the physical makeup of people how must their minds be affected?"
